

Marco Magliocco

Cool dude-Ice-Cream Man!

Name:	Marco Magliocco
Age:	39
My favourite memory from my time at St. Joseph's...	One of my favourite memories of school, was going there and seeing all of my friends, and learning new tasks every day, I have lots of memories and I wish I was still there, I miss all my friends and some of the teachers there, I still stay in contact with some of the friends I grew up there with which is really, really nice.
My message for the children at St. Joseph's now...	It is important that you stay focused and if you don't understand something just ask and if you still don't understand keep on asking, until you get it right. Most importantly, enjoy school while you can and always be kind to one another, Remember your manners and you will go a long way in life.
What did I become?	After leaving secondary school I went to college to learn to be a farrier /blacksmith, I also went on another course where I learnt general building skills like plastering tiling and plumbing. I worked on a local yard where I would look after the horses and make sure their hooves were in good condition. I later changed and went into the building trade. I then left the building trade and become a self-employed car windscreen fitter. I had my own business for quite a lot of years, but then was offered the ice cream business which was a family run business, and this is where I have stayed for the last 12 years!

